ABSTRACT

A method of displaying network data including: entering a request for the network data into a computer; creating a network data request; transmitting the network data request from the computer to a server; verifying the network data request by comparing 5 the network data request to criteria defined by a business rule; obtaining the network data; creating a data response; transmitting the first data response from the server to the computer; and displaying the network data.